The greatness and moral progress of a nation can be judged by the way its animals are treated.

Hello VIPs,

I've been a vegetarian for over 20 years. Not one time have I broken my commitment to not eat meat. It's an easy choice because I know what happens to cows, pigs, chicken and fish in how they get to the plate. Over my 8 years of educating people about the abuses of factory farming through Compassionate Carnivores, the one main message I hear from people is "Do not show me any pictures!" I know that for me, the pictures and facing reality is what has cemented my on-going commitment to not support the cruelty and, truly, without exaggeration, the torture, that animals endure to become our food.

I'm asking you to please watch the video link under What You Can Do. Then commit to reducing meat from your diet. This video shows the truth of what happens. I believe that not one of you could carry out what needs to happen for food to arrive on your plate. However, you are paying the salary of these people and supporting the practices each time you purchase meat at the store or restaurant.
